Each year, the parents of approximately 15,800 kids will hear the words “your child has cancer”, and 2000 of those children will not survive. Almost 60% of children who survive cancer into their adulthood suffer late-effects such as heart failure, secondary cancers, or infertility.

We aim to ease the burdens of patients and families suffering from childhood cancers in honor of the life of the Foundation’s namesake, Sean Hanna.

The Sean Hanna Foundation organizes and provides a comprehensive support network to families battling cancer. In the tragic event that a child does pass away from cancer or its complications, the foundation provides bereavement funds and further assistance.

Our charity was founded in honor of our namesake, Sean Hanna.
